[Picture 1]

Caption: Anti-guerrilla units of the Federal Police. Several of them were in front of the Justicialista headquarters when the coffins were removed.

POLICE MOBILIZATION

[Picture 2]

246 La Plata Avenue, headquarters of the Justicialista Party on San Lorenzo de Almagro St. and the block of Santa Maria. Faces didn't express holiness, though. Inside, in the venue, distorted countenances, absorbed and consternated, watched the three coffins. Outside, in the street, thousands, reflecting impotence, were watching over the traffic. It is hard to find a common denominator for these people, a characteristic feature. There were people of all ages, from various social settings. Bearded and hairless; with books under their arms and oil on their hands and their jackets. Older women and students. Few spoke; and those who were speaking, did so in a quiet, broken voice...

A long—also silent— line waited to go inside to see the dead. The serenity of many ruled the impulse of others "to do something." The police

Caption: Motorcycles, ambulances, and guns of all calibers in front of the Justicialista headquarters. To many eyes—totally objective—, police deployment seemed a bit exaggerated.

[Picture 4]

[Picture 3]

14 ASI

CERTIFICATE OF TRANSLATION

I, Consuelo Cardozo, hereby certify that I am competent to translate from Spanish into English (or vice versa), and that I have translated the document Pregliasco

Appendix C ASÍ Article (C15-C24) from Spanish into English to the best of my ability and being faithful to the original content as an authorized translator.

Therefore, I certify that the attached English version is a true and accurate translation of the original document in Spanish.

Cochabamba, Bolivia, January 30, 2022

Caralo Cardos G.

Consuelo Cardozo Certificate of Translation 1987 School of Continuing Education New York University

Edificio Porto Belo II, Dpto. 4A, Calle Chimané #20, entre calles Céspedes e Irigoyen, Sarco Central Cochabamba, Bolivia

Teléfono: + (591 - 4) 722 11 724 • Correo electrónico: consuelocardozo@aol.com • NIT 452832018

Motos, ambulancias y armas de todo calibre, frente a la sede justicialista. A muchos ojos —totalmente objetivos— les pareció ver un

Avenida La Plata 246. Sede Central del Partido Justicialista. Es la calle de San Lorenzo de Almagro y la cuadra de Santa Maria. Sin embargo, los rostros no mostraban santidad. Adentro, en el local, semblantes desencajados miraban consternados, absortos, tres féretros. Afuera, en la calle que hacia vigilia de tránsito, miles de personas reflejaban impotencia. Es difícil dar un común denominador de cómo era esa gente. De cuál era su rasgo característico. Había de todas las edades. De diferente condición social. De barba y bigotes. Y Jampiños. Con libros bajo el brazo y con grasa en las manos y sobre las camperas. Mujeres de edad y estudiantes. Pocos eran los que hablaban. Y los que lo hacían, lo hacían en voz baja, quebrada. ...
Una larga cola —también silenciosa— aguardaba para entrara ver a los muertos. La serenidad e muchos domaba las ganas de otros "por hacer algo". La policía

C-15