Conclusion of Sentencing of Former Salvadoran Military Commander Responsible for Jesuits Massacre To Occur Next Week in Boston

Former Salvadoran Vice Minister of Defense for Public Security Inocente Orlando Montano Also Faces Extradition to Spain

Who: Carolyn Patty Blum and Almudena Bernabeu, Center for Justice & Accountability (CJA).

What: Former Salvadoran Vice Minister of Defense for Public Security Inocente Orlando Montano will be sentenced for violating federal criminal immigration fraud and perjury laws in the United States. The sentencing phase, which began in January, should conclude on August 22.

Montano is an indicted defendant in the criminal case pending before the Spanish National Court and brought by the Center for Justice and Accountability for his role as one of the decision-makers ordering the assassination of the Jesuits priests and their employees in El Salvador in 1989. In September 2012, Colonel Montano pled guilty to six counts of immigration fraud and perjury for making false statements on his application for Temporary Protected Status in order to hide his Salvadoran military career and to obtain a humanitarian benefit for which he was not eligible. The prosecution argued for an enhanced sentence based on evidence related to Montano's role in the November 16, 1989 massacre of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter on the campus of the University of Central America and lengthy history of human rights abuses committed by troops Montano commanded during the Salvadoran civil war. The prosecution argued that Montano came to the United States and lied about his past, in part, to avoid possible criminal prosecution for the Jesuit killings. The prosecution's expert witness, Professor Terry Karl of Stanford University, has filed an expert report in the case and will be made available for cross-examination.

Colonel Montano has indicated he intends to call General Mauricio Vargas as a witness on his behalf. Vargas was a classmate of Montano's in the military academy and represented the military's interests at the peace negotiations that ended the war. Vargas, Montano and others later were purged from the military based on their human rights records.

The Center for Justice and Accountability initiated the criminal case for the Jesuits massacre against 20 former members of the military responsible for the massacre, including the other members of the High Command alongside Col. Montano. The defendants are charged with crimes against humanity and murder. The Spanish National Court has issued indictments, arrest warrants and extradition requests against the defendants. The Court seeks to have them stand trial in Spain for the murders. The extradition request for Montano is pending before U.S. government officials.

When: August 22, 2013, 9:00am.

Where: Courtroom of the Honorable Douglas P. Woodlock, Joseph Moakley U.S. Courthouse, One Courthouse Way, Room 4110, Boston MA 02110.

Note: CJA Senior Legal Adviser Carolyn Patty Blum will be available at the courthouse and can be reached by cell phone (646-644-3887). Almudena Bernabeu, lead counsel for CJA in the Spanish prosecution, may be reached at 415-305-2097.
